Shenzhen Location

Why you need to visit Shenzhen?

Shenzhen (深圳) - the rising star in the southern China

Shenzhen is located in Guangdong province, adjacent to Hong Kong and bordering Dongguan city and Huizhou city. As China's first Special Economic Zone, Shenzhen's pleasant climate and picturesque coastal and mountain scenery have turned it into an attractive travel destination, which earned a place on The New York Times' list of the world's 31 must-visit destinations. It is also a major transport hub for travelers entering and departing China.

Shenzhen is a leading global technology hub, dubbed by media as the next Silicon Valley, it attracts high-flying tech graduates and global corporations.

Shenzhen Location

Why you need to visit Shenzhen?

- Shenzhen is a key city in China's Greater Bay Area, a central government scheme to develop an integrated economic hub by linking nine major cities of South China's Guangdong Province, Hong Kong and Macau.
- The Greater Bay Area includes major garment manufacturing hubs for all kinds of garment clusters, including ladieswear, menswear, kids wear, denim, wool and underwear.
- The new venue is located near the Shenzhen Bao'an International Airport, while the area is also well connected via high speed trains and the world's third largest ferry port, ensuring convenience for local manufacturers as well as international buying offices from Hong Kong.
- The fair is also an ideal location for garment producers from countries in the ASEAN region, such as Vietnam, Thailand, Indonesia, the Philippines, Malaysia and Cambodia.

A world-class fashion destination

The venue is close to Dalang Fashion Town in Shenzhen, an ongoing development subsidised by the government that aims to use the momentum of the Greater Bay Area to build an international fashion centre. The development builds on top of Shenzhen's strong foundations in fashion, with the city already being a well-known ladieswear hub, home to around 30,000 fashion designers and over 2,000 fashion retailers.

With aims to specialise in technology, design and sustainability, Dalang Fashion Town is part of China's efforts to continue to expand its textile industry from not only manufacturing, but also to design and trendsetting. The area is home to around 500 domestic fashion enterprises.

Travel in Shenzhen city

Shenzhen being such a new city has the advantage of a planned street grid. The quality of the urban planning is reflected in excellent transport infrastructure.

By metro

The Shenzhen Metro (深圳地铁) is the most convenient and easy to understand method of transport around the Shenzhen city area. Trains come every 3 minutes or so and the metro runs until 11PM. Fares are ¥2-9. The most convenient way to travel is to buy a Shenzhen Tong (深圳通) card. This is a stored value ticket that you can just tap the card to use the metro service. Distance-based fares start from ¥2, with tokens purchased from bilingual machines (you'll need ¥1 coins or ¥5 notes).

One-day travel passes can be bought at metro-station service booths for ¥20, good for both metro and buses. Most bus trips in town cost around ¥1 to ¥2

The Shenzhen Metro currently has 8 lines, 199 stations. Fuyong station (Line 11) is the close station to the venue

Website: <http://www.szmc.net/page/eng/index.html>

By Taxi

Flagfall for taxis is ¥12.50 (¥16 from 11pm to 6am), with a ¥4 fuel surcharge and ¥2.40 for every additional kilometer. For trips out of the city, you can usually negotiate a fee in advance. Tipping is not expected at all. Round up to the next Yuan.

It is rare to find any drivers who speak English. Hence be sure to have the names and addresses of your destinations written in Chinese to show your taxi driver if you do not speak Mandarin.

Shenzhen Sightseeing

Shenzhen is a sprawling city covering ten districts and having around 15 million inhabitants. The well-developed public transport system is both efficient and inexpensive. Beside the amazing food during the whole day & night-time and its image as a fast-paced business city, Shenzhen offers a lot to do & to discover. Here are a few “Hot-Spots” in Shenzhen.

Local Restaurant

Shenzhen is nowhere near being a gastronomical capital like Hong Kong, but you'll find cuisines from all over China due to the migration of large numbers of people from all across the country. There are also many Asian restaurants and Western-style restaurants.

Haidilao Hot Pot 海底捞 (Hot Pot)

Hot pot restaurants are best for small groups of friends or family. This way of eating isn't Cantonese, but is common in Sichuan and other provinces. You can enjoy socializing as the Chinese do by sitting around a table with a big pot boiling in the middle. You'll select a group of ingredients to boil with the help of the waiter.

Address: No.2105 West Ring Road, Shajing Avenue, Bao'an District Shop 712 7/F, Xinsha Tianhong Shopping Mall, Shenzhen

Website:

<https://www.haidilao.com/en/index/index.html>

Luk Show 禄鼎记 (Sichuan cuisine)

Shenzhen residents adore Sichuan food, especially spicy fish with pickled mustard greens. Definitely order the signature sea bass, which comes in a large vat of sour soup and is topped with chili, peppercorns, pickled mustard greens and other bold and spicy ingredients.

Address: Shop 081-083A, 2/F, Uniwalk , 99 Xinhua Rd, Baoan District , Shenzhen

BaShu FengYue 巴蜀风月 (Sichuan cuisine)

It might be the flagship of Sichuan cuisine in Shenzhen. There are several branches in the city, but the one in Baoan is the nearest to Shenzhen World Exhibition and Convention Center

Address: 2nd Floor, Tower C, Tai Hua Jun Yi Shi Jia, LuoTian Road Yu Xinhua Road Crossing, Shenzhen

Local Restaurant

Laurel Restaurant (Luoho Branch) 丹桂轩 (Dim sum and Canton cuisine)

A longstanding dim-sum restaurant with more than half a dozen branches in Shenzhen, Laurel prides itself on friendly service. All the classics are well represented here, including Cantonese roast meats, with an English picture menu to help you order.

Address: 5F, Louhu Commercial City, Renmin Road | Railroad Station Square, Shenzhen, China

Grandma's Home (Yifang Center) 外婆家 (Hangzhou cuisine)

Shenzhen residents adore Sichuan food, especially spicy fish with pickled mustard greens. Definitely order the signature sea bass, which comes in a large vat of sour soup and is topped with chili, peppercorns, pickled mustard greens and other bold and spicy ingredients.

Address: B1, Yifang City, 102-75 Xinhua Road, Baoan district, Shenzhen

Yinxing Porridge Shop — Bao'an District 银兴粥店 (Canton cuisine)

This restaurant features Cantonese congee (rice soup or creamy rice), and for this reason, it ranks lower among foreigners looking for something exciting like Beijing duck.

Address: Jianshe Road, Gongming Town, Bao'an District.

Local Restaurant

HEYTEA喜茶 (Dessert and Drink)

The brand's best known for its fresh brews, from smashed fruit to addictive cheese foam-topped teas. Try the rich cheese-cap tea, special fruit tea or bubble tea – all of which will leave you hankering for more.

Address: Shop 041/042, Floor L1, Yifang City, 99 Xihu Road, Baoan district, Shenzhen

Nan Men Yi Fang Night markets

The food street called Nan Men Yi Fang is packed full of barbecue restaurants and stands, and here you will be served plates of the best barbecue food.

Coco Park (Drinking place)

Coco Park downtown in Futian is the epicentre of the Shenzhen bar and nightclub scene. Coco Park has a variety of bars packed into the block. Shenzhen's own Kingway Beer (金威啤酒) is brewed in two locations in Shenzhen.

Metro: Shopping Park station, Exit G

Internet in China

There are several options to provide you phone/ laptop/ device with mobile data:

1. Buy a Chinese Prepaid Sim card

There are 3 major mobile internet carriers in China: China Mobile, China Unicom, and China Telecom. They offer a prepaid Sim-card.

Disadvantage: Without a VPN you're not able to access Facebook, all Google services (Gmail, Maps, etc.), WhatsApp

2. Buy a Hong Kong Sim card with Data Roaming

To buy a data SIM card, you need to access China through Hong Kong. You can purchase different Sim cards from different providers in every convenience store like 7-eleven, 1010 centers, Circle K shops & 3Shop.

The Roaming Sim card is a bit more expensive than a local Chinese Sim card but you're able to access Facebook, Google and WhatsApp without a VPN.

3. Rent a portable Hotspot

You can rent a portable Hotspot for China and Hong Kong in Hong Kong airport especial if you have few devices that need to connect to internet.

Essential App to travel in China

WeChat

Wechat is a messenger, video chat, social media platform, bank account, shopping app, and map all rolled into one.

You can translate messages sent on the app from English to Chinese and vice-versa; You can also use the “scan” function as a camera translator. Use the scanner to take a photo of a menu or bus schedule, and WeChat will translate it to English.

An incredibly powerful feature of WeChat is WeChat Wallet. China is rapidly moving towards a cashless society. Through WeChat you can pay for almost everything on your phone. You'll see QR codes taped to walls and laminated on cards. You can scan the code and then use a linked bank account or your WeChat balance to pay.

Download link: <https://www.wechat.com/en/>

Didi

Didi is the Chinese version of Uber and can be useful in a variety of travel situations.

When you take a taxi, you'll need to be able to tell the driver the name of where you're going in Chinese. Didi solves that issue because it works just like Uber: When you are picked up, your destination is already loaded into the driver's navigation.

In order to use Didi, you need WeChat Wallet. If you aren't able to use WeChat pay, it is possible to request Didi's for other people. Let your hostel or guesthouse know if you plan on arriving somewhere late and they can arrange a Didi for you.

Baidu Maps

Google Maps don't work in China, but you won't need it when you have Baidu!

Drop a pin at your favorite venues and place, stars to keep them highlighted on the map as you explore the surrounding area; extremely useful for browsing while taking note of your orientation.
